

IIMS Certifying Authority

Why transfer your vessel to the IIMS Certifying Authority?

It's never been simpler to transfer your commercially coded vessel to the IIMS!

Maritime & Coastguard
Agency

Certifying Authority authorised by the MCA

International Institute of Marine Surveying

ISO 9001 Certified

The scope of the IIMS 9001 certification is 'Training services in marine surveying'.

What the IIMS Certifying Authority can offer...

Streamline service upon transfer of vessel files from another Certifying Authority. Contact us by email at ca@iims.org.uk, and we'll be happy to answer your queries.

Coding fees are competitive and listed on our website at: iimscertifyingauthority.co.uk

You will need to request for the vessel file to be transferred to us from your current Certifying Authority, then we can walk you easily through the next steps.

All inward transfer vessels will require survey to the extent deemed necessary by the surveyor.

We will then require a few documents to be submitted to us, if your vessel coding with the previous Certifying Authority is still active:

1. An IIMS SCV1.

2. An IIMS SCV2 declaration page, completed by yourself and the approved IIMS coding surveyor.

3. An IIMS SCV2 Amendment Form completed by yourself and the approved IIMS coding surveyor.

The IIMS documentation, along with the vessel file will then be scrutinized by one of our IIMS CA Committee members.

Upon scrutineer approval and payment of any fees, the vessel certification will be issued by the IIMS CA.

What and who are IIMS?

IIMS is the leading, worldwide, professional body for the marine surveying profession.

Established in 1991, IIMS now boasts 1,000 members in over 100 countries.

The Institute publishes the Report Magazine quarterly, an editorially rich publication that can be read in pdf or e-reader format. Regular networking opportunities throughout the year are organised by IIMS, including events to help train coding examiners with new regulations.

In 2017 IIMS was recognised for its distance learning Professional Qualification in marine surveying when it won a top education Award.

Access to a Continuing Professional Development App helps members maintain their currency in the marketplace.
